

GANGRENE GERM FOUND IN TIME TO AID WAR VICTIMS

Discovery Made by Drs. Scarlett and Desjardins of American Ambulance Service.

PARIS, Nov. 2 (Associated Press).—A microbe causing gangrene to develop in bullet and shrapnel wounds has been discovered by Drs. James Scarlett and George Desjardins of the American ambulance service.

Previously initial cultures all were negative, leading to the belief of scientists that the disease was caused not by a single germ but by a combination of germs.

After much research a single bacteria has been discovered and isolated and the serum is now being prepared by Dr. Henri Weinberg of the Pasteur Institute.

The discovery is expected to be of great importance to the ambulance service. The serum is being injected into patients on the battlefield in the early stages of infection, obviating amputations and preventing a great loss of life.

The wounded now arriving are far more seriously hurt than were the victims in the early stages of the war. Most of those who were injured by shrapnel are in a serious condition and there is a growing percentage of tetanus cases. This is due to the fact that the emergency hospital camps attached at the front are over-crowded. Nurses and additional doctors are badly needed.

Hundreds of these wounded are also suffering from bayonet wounds. The German troops who have been operating in Northern France and Belgium have been far more efficient in the use of the bayonet than those engaged in the earlier battles, and the wounds they inflict are extremely dangerous.

Among the wounded are many of the British Indian troops who have been acting as the chief supporters of the Belgians.

The closer you study the eyeglass "price question"—the deeper you go into the subject of "satisfactory eyeglass service"—the more you will appreciate the Harris Eyeglass service.

The fact that ours is the Largest Retail Optical Business in the world and that we guarantee complete eyeglass satisfaction are but two of many reasons why you should trust your eyeglass problems to us.
